

For four years the Bush administration has bent over and accepted every deregulatory demand from huge broadcast monopolies (i.e. FOX). It's about time the FCC developed a backbone and stood up for choice in local radio broadcasting. Isn't using repeaters for local programming giving us users more choice?